

FOOD & WINE

Top 10 Wine Values of the Year

By Ray Isle - Posted December 18, 2015

The holidays are here, parties are abundant, and wine is necessary. With that in mind, here are executive wine editor Ray Isle's top 10 wine values of 2015.

“After tasting, oh, a couple of thousand bottles of wine this year, these ten stood out as my favorites in the under-$20 zone—a list surprisingly dominated by white wines in 2015. Regardless, each offers incredible quality at a very fair price; any would be great at a holiday party, or as a hostess gift, or simply as something to sip while contemplating the approach of the New Year.”

2013 Evolúció Furmint ($13)

“Furmint is the Hungarian grape that produces the great sweet wines of Tokaji. What's little known in the U.S. is that it also makes impressive dry wines, like this rich but balanced bottling.

Kudos to Boutique Wine Collection, the importer, for bringing it in.”

Please visit www.boutiquewines.info for complete information on Evolúció.